A gravedigger beetle has a most extraordinary sense of smell. He can detect the peculiar odor of decomposithe dead thing as straight as an arrow. His remarkably keen nose is situated in his clublike feelers.

As a rule several gravediggers are found near a dead body. They crawl under it and scratch the supporting earth away, so that the body soon lies in a hollow. Gradually the body is lowered until it sinks below the surface. Then it is covered with earth. The female lays her eggs around the interred form, thus insuring for the

Wanted to Help Him.

His kindness to his men once placed Dr. William H. Nichols in a predicament which caused him the worst mortification in his whole life says a writer in Leslie's. The head of one of the concern's largest customers came to him and complained that he had been systematically cheated by short weighing of carboys containing acid. Dr. Nichols could not believe the allegation, but on going to the consumer's plant fifty carboys were weighed, and each was found ten pounds short. He promised to make an immediate inves-

One employee was pointed out to Dr. Nichols as the man responsible for seeing that every carboy contained the proper quantity of acid. This employee Dr. Nichols would have trusted with his own money. But when questioned he colored up and stammered. Finally he blurted out:

"Mr. Nichols, the boys is very fond of you, and we wanted to help you."

FARM WAGONS "The best lot of Wagon's I've seen in the state of Vermont"— was the remark of a disinterested traveler who recently visited our warehouse. We wouldn't have ventured to say so much curselves, for we haven't seen all the other places where Wagons are sold. We have been too busy. Besides, we are inclined to be conservative and let our satiafied customers carry the good news. But we do know, and our customers know, that Studebakers lest a lifetime. Remember, we exchange.
